

REJUVENATED WITH EACH BREATH

The first western Adventist health center, which was modeled after Battle Creek Sanitarium, opened in St. Helena, California, in 1878. Within a week, every bed was occupied and tents were pitched outside to house employees and patient overflow. Some guests actually requested tents so they could fully enjoy the mountain air.

